Yeah, support is always a question, but we've honestly seen better data integrity with them in the last 90 days vs LL.

I was actually pretty impressed with the demo yesterday.. As far as actual demos are concerned, it blew away the LL one. But I think it had a lot of good features in there as well.

I still don't love the data structure, and I based on other RL clients, once you are out of the initial setup process, getting support is really tough (at least it has been historically).

Really want to get more details in regards to how they load balance, the actual data that is driving it. But all in all, I think its a solid option.

Yeah the demo looked good and they have a tracking feature...we are just sorting through the T&Cs now and should have something firm by next week.
